LINCOLN’S LIFE—EXPERIENCES AND TRAVELS

OVERVIEW
In this lesson, students will study the places and events important in the life of Abraham Lincoln. A brief PowerPoint will be used as an introduction to his travels before students read and take notes about him and his life in a variety of books and on the Internet. The final project is a presentation using a student-created PowerPoint about Lincoln when he lived in Kentucky, Indiana, Illinois, or Washington, D.C.

GRADE LEVEL
Created for grades 3-5, but easily adapted to grades 6-8 with modification of resources made available to students.

TIME NEEDED
The lesson from start to finish will take from two to three weeks, depending on the length of the class period used (30-45 minutes) and how much of the research is done outside of class. Less time could be needed if the teacher supplies hard copies of information for each group to read rather than allowing students to research their topic. Creating a presentation will take approximately one week if students have prior experience using PowerPoint. Plans should include one or two additional class periods for students to give their presentations.

OBJECTIVES
The student will-
- learn where Abraham Lincoln lived and events in his life.
- utilize research techniques to find information.
- create a PowerPoint presentation about the information learned.
- present his/her multimedia presentation to the rest of the fourth grade.

MATERIALS
Teacher
- Computer with projection unit
- Presentation direction sheet
- Research note sheet
- Storyboard template
- PowerPoint template
- Rubrics (for PowerPoint presentation and peer assessment) and scoring sheet
- Expected Group Behaviors sheet

Student
- Pencil
- Paper
- Clipboard
- Computer with internet access
- Books on Abraham Lincoln and his life

Visuals
- PowerPoint presentation of the places where Lincoln lived

ADVANCED PREPARATION
1. Photocopy presentation guideline worksheet, research note template, and storyboard template for each student.
2. Enlarge a partial map of the United States showing clearly the locations where Lincoln lived (Illinois, Indiana, Kentucky, and Washington, D.C.). This may be done by making a transparency of the United States and using an overhead projector to enlarge the area needed.
3. Schedule computer lab time.
4. Gather books on Abraham Lincoln on a variety of reading levels.

INTRODUCING THE ACTIVITY
1. Using a brainstorming session, students will share what they know about Abraham Lincoln.
2. The teacher will show a PowerPoint presentation to show the location of various places where Abraham Lincoln lived.
3. Explain to students what they will do, using the guideline worksheet.

PROCEDURES
1. Distribute the research note template, explaining students are to fill in as much information as they can find during their time researching using Internet and printed materials.
2. Assign student groups the location they are to research. Students must know where this location is in the United States and be able to place a sticky dot on the map in the classroom to indicate where your location is found.
3. Give students ample time to conduct their research and fill in the note template, assisting as needed to help students find what they need to complete the project. Approximately five 30-45 minute class periods should be allowed for this purpose. Research may also be done outside of class, if desired.
4. Students use the information from their notes to complete the storyboard worksheet for each slide of their presentation. Be sure students understand that the slide will not include everything that will be said in the presentation. They will also need to include in the lower box the extra information they will present. Approving each group’s storyboard before the group begins the actual presentation is beneficial.
5. Students create their PowerPoint presentation using their storyboards as their guide. If they do not have prior experience using PowerPoint, model how to use the program. This may be done by having students do a slide or two while you give step-by-step instructions for using the most common PowerPoint tools. This may be done with students creating their first presentation slide during the modeling exercise.
6. Students revise/edit their presentation.
7. Each group should practice giving their presentation, making sure that all students participate equally. Each group must know where to place the sticky dot on the map at the start of the presentation to give the audience a visual of this location. They also need to encourage all group members to speak loudly, slowly, and clearly as they practice to prepare for the actual presentation.

CONCLUDING THE LESSON
1. Students give their presentation. The students in the audience complete a peer assessment for each other group’s presentation.
2. After all presentations have been made, conduct a discussion of what was learned, using the location PowerPoint as students share information learned about Lincoln and each location where he lived.

ASSESSING THE ACTIVITY
1. Use a rubric to assess the PowerPoint presentation.
2. Include the average scores on the peer assessment rubric when completing the scoring sheet.

EXTENDING THE ACTIVITY
Any of the following activities may be used as an extension of the lesson.
1. Write a poem about an event or place in Lincoln’s life.
2. Memorize the Gettysburg Address.
3. Create an ABC book of Abraham Lincoln’s life with each student creating one page.
4. Make a quilt square representative of an important event in your presentation.
5. Write a sympathy card to Mary Todd Lincoln to express condolences on the death of her husband.
7. Watch video(s) on Abraham Lincoln and his life. If using UnitedStreaming videos, the Teacher’s Guide and Blackline Masters offer additional activities and discussion questions.
